

Social and Personal

The Question.

When ladies bright shall tempt thee with their smiles,
Their silver brows, sweet speech and lovely smiles,
Will thou muse: "Dearest far to me her look,
When she is silent: as a running brook
In mossy ways, her still voice; and her eyes
Downcast, and blush, and virgin fear I prize."
More than rose-lips or glance of sunny eyes?

Society in Holiday Mood.

Given skies as blue and air as soft as those which made yesterday an ideal Indian summer day, and society was early abroad and astir to its time and pleasure. The colors of the Virginia and North Carolina Universities fluttered gaily from the ends of canes, from the rapiers which held them on young ladies' coats from the trape and the horses which carried parties of smart people to the bull grounds.

The reception at the Deep Run Hunt Club was an attraction which drew numbers of matrons and maids to the charmingly decorated in chrysanthemums, roses and palms. The most took place at the kennel in 10 in the morning, and was largely attended.

The Thanksgiving German.

After the Hunt Club meet and reception, the ball game, the dinner and the play at the Bijou in the evening came the crowning event of the day in the Thanksgiving German.

The Masonic Temple, where the German was danced, was decorated with palms and chrysanthemums by Mr. Hammond and brightened with the Virginia and North Carolina flags. The German, the prettiest feature of it being the debutante figure, in which Miss Martha Robinson, Miss Courtney Camp, Miss Louise McAdams, Miss Nellie Davenport, Miss Margaret McCall, Miss Helen Lathrop, Miss Bernice Tompkins, Miss Charlotte Miller, Miss Bernard Cooke, Miss Gertrude Lewis, Miss Louise Price, Miss Ellen Cowardin, Miss Allie Jennings, Miss Kathleen Boyd, Miss Anne Talbot, Miss Mildred Boyd, Miss Nancy Waddill and Miss Emily Waddill took part.

Patronesses for the evening were Mrs. George Ben Johnston, Mrs. Thomas Bolinger, Jr., Mrs. Beverly T. Crump, Mrs. W. S. Mayo, Mrs. A. Churchill Young, Mrs. Adolphus Blase, Mrs. Charles Rutherford, Mrs. Charles E. Worthington, Jr., Mrs. Eugene Masie, Mrs. Granville C. Valentine, Mrs. Pelham Blackford, Mrs. William M. Taliaferro, Mrs. R. T. Wilson, Mrs. J. R. V. Daniel, Mrs. Pleasant Conquest, Mrs. Horace S. Hawes, Mrs. John L. de Treille and Mrs. Parkie Benjamin Taliaferro.

About sixty couples or more were dancing, and the evening was exceedingly pretty, the ball room being a rainbow-like scene of bright colors, with a glancing of brilliant costumes. The music was very brilliant, and the whole affair was attended with the greatest success and credit to Miss Carrie Armstrong and Miss Louise Herbert, of this city, who directed every arrangement for it.

Phantom Party at Club.

The Belle Harrison Circle of King's Daughters will give a phantom party and dance for children at the Woman's Club Saturday, November 26th, from 4 till 6 o'clock. A cleverly gotten-up illusion in verse says:

We are going to have a party
At the Woman's Club, you know,
And your welcome will be hearty:
We'll have good times here below.
The date will be on Saturday,
November twenty-six;
Admission just twice ten.
This party for you, of our tricks,
Come in phantom, bring your money—
'Tis the Sheltering Arms appeals;
Help the needy, soothe the suffering,
While you dance Thanksgiving reels.
You are invited from four to eight,
Come early and stay late.
The party is given for the benefit of the Belle Harrison Circle, and the ladies have devised a number of unusual and delightful amusements and entertainments for the little folks who attend. Refreshments will be served and each child will be presented with a saucer of cream free of charge.

Rummage Sale.

Please send all articles for the Sheltering Arms rummage sale, beginning November 28th, and running through that week, to No. 1209 East Main Street.

Talbot-Sarratt.

The wedding of Miss Ethel Wilson Sarratt, the daughter of the late A. A. Sarratt, to Lieutenant Samuel Graham Talbot, of the Twenty-eighth United States Infantry, the son of the late Samuel G. Talbot, and the grandson of Mr. M. L. Lewis, of this city, took place Wednesday afternoon at the First Methodist of Gaffney, S. C., the bride being married from the home of her brother, Mr. W. Judson Sarratt, of Gaffney.

The church was handsomely decorated in palms, flowers and southern smilax, and Miss George Steady directed the music. The bride, who came in with Mr. W. Judson Sarratt, was given in white silk mull over white liberty satin and chiffon. Her veil was caught with pearls, the gift of the groom and she carried bride roses.

The bridesmaids and groomsmen included Miss Maryanna Irvine Hayne, of Greenville, S. C., with Mr. R. Latimer Gordon, of Richmond; Miss Mary Emma Foster, of Union S. C., with Mr. J. Anthony Sarratt, brother of the bride; Miss Lillian Wood, of Gaffney, with Mr. Harry Faulkner Talbot, cousin of the bridegroom; Miss Eva Ross, of Gaffney, with Dr. S. G. Sarratt, of Union, brother of the bride. The bridesmaids wore white crepe de chine, and had arm bouquets of white chrysanthemums. Miss Fannie Bennett, sister of the bride, the cousin of the groom, was maid of honor. She was in pink crepe de chine. Her flowers were pink chrysanthemums. Mr. B. C. Lewis was best man to the groom.

A reception followed the wedding, given in the home of the bride at Gaffney. Lieutenant Talbot and his bride are now being entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burnett Lewis, of East Franklin Street, before leaving for the United States army post, at Fort Snelling, Minn., where Lieutenant Talbot is now stationed.

SAY NOT OF ME.

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

The father and grandfather of Robert Louis Stevenson were engineers of great skill and reputation, especially in the building of lighthouses. The grandfather was the first engineer to build a lighthouse on a reef which was always submerged at high tide.

Robert Louis was educated as an engineer, and after vain attempts to like the profession, gave it up and became a writer. This poem is his apology.

AY not of me that weakly I declined
The labors of my sires and fled the sea,
The towers we founded and the lamps we lit
To play at home with paper like a child,
But rather say: In the afternoon of time
A strenuous family dusted from its lands
The sands of granite, and beholding far
Along the sounding coast its pyramids
And tall memorials catch the dying sun.
Smiled well content, and to this childish task
Around the fire addressed its evening hours

November 23d, in referring to Ambassador Jusserand, says:

M. Jusserand is not only a prominent diplomat, but an author and critic of distinction. He has published two volumes upon English literature, which are said to be a work surpassing that of Talne. No Frenchman of such distinction has visited the University since Lafayette's memorable visit in 1826. It is peculiarly fitting that in this centennial year of the Louisiana Purchase by Jefferson, that Jefferson's University should receive a visit from the representative of the French government at Washington.

Box Party at Academy.

A much noticed box party at the Academy of Music Wednesday evening included Governor and Mrs. Andrew J. Montague, Miss Gay Montague, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Alderman, of the University of Virginia; Colonel John S. Wertenbaker and Mr. L. D. Cole, of the University of Virginia.

After the performance the members of the staff entertained Governor and Mrs. Montague and Miss Montague, Dr. and Mrs. Alderman and their University guests at a handsomely appointed dinner, given in a private dining room of the Westminster Club.

at Hampshire" cried the archers laughing.

"By my soul, you may grin," cried John. "But I learned how to make the long shoot from old Iob Miller of Milford. He took up a great black bow, as he spoke, and sitting down upon the ground he placed his two feet on either end of the shaft. With an arrow fitted, he then pulled the string toward him with both hands until the head of the shaft was level with the wood. The great bow creaked and groaned and the cord vibrated with the tension.

"Who is this fool's head who stands in the way of my shoot?" said he, craning up his neck from the ground.

"He stands on the further side of the mark," answered the Brabanter, "so he has little to fear from you."

"Over the fourth!" groined Aylward. "By my hill! I think that it is well up to the fifth."

"It is over the fifth!" cried a Gascon loudly, and a comrade came running with waving arms to say that the bolt had pitched eight paces beyond the mark of the five hundred.

"Which weapon hath the vantage now?" cried the Brabanter, strutting proudly with shouldered alabaster, and the applause of his companions.

"You can overshoot me," said Johnston, gently.

"Any other man who ever bent a long bow," cried his victorious adversary. "Nay, not so fast," said a huge archer, whose mighty shoulders and red head towered high above the throng of his comrades. "I must have a word with you ere you grow so loudly. Where is your little popper? By sainted Dick of Hamplott it will be a strange thing if I cannot overshoot that thing of mine, which to my eyes is more like a rat trap than a bow. Will you try another flight, or do you stand by your last?"

"Five hundred and eight paces will serve my turn," answered the Brabanter, looking askance at this new opponent.

"Nay, John," whispered Aylward, "you never were a marksman. Why must you thrust your spoon into this den?"

"Easy and slow, Aylward. There are very many things which I cannot do, but there are also one or two which I have the trick of. It is in my mind that I can beat this shoot, if my bow will but hold together."

"Go on, old babe of the woods!" "Have

GIRL SUICIDE WAS NOT BESSIE HENKEL

Investigation Leads to Belief That Wakefield Police Were Off Track.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WAKEFIELD, MASS., Nov. 24.—Further investigation proves that the Wakefield police were off the track in their identification of the supposed Norfolk, Va., steamer-suicide, Bessie Henkel. She was a young girl, daughter of a prominent citizen and had never been married. Her father, P. J. Henkel, said that she had been a stenographer up to three weeks ago, in Bridgeport, Conn., but had given up her position and started South. He knows of no reason of her committing suicide and is inclined to think she is with her mother, who has been separated from him and is now living in New York.

CAN LIVE IN GLOBE AND DEFY HIGH SEAS

Man Who Saw His Own Family Perish Invents Life-Saving Device.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—A life-saving globe, the invention of a Dane, named Donvig, who saw his entire family perish in a shipwreck on a rocky coast, is described in a report to the Department of Commerce and Labor by Consul Raymond R. Frazier at Copenhagen. The consul reports that experiments made with the tank in Copenhagen harbor appeared to be successful.

The globe is constructed of 1/16-inch steel plates, and has the form of sphere, from which a segment has been cut, the flat part forming the bottom. This bottom is double, the outer being of 5-1/2-inch steel, and the inner of 1/16-inch steel. The globe is large enough to hold around the largest part of the globe, on the outside, anchor, with 100 fathoms of 1-1/2-inch steel rope; and with fresh water in the tank, it is strong and loose, and is provided for 16 men; bilge pump; closet bucket; steel rudder and tiller; sails and rigging.

Around the interior of the globe are a series of lockers, which serve as seats for the crew. Provisions can be stored in the lockers, and fresh water in the tank. Between the double bottoms of the globe, through the top of the globe a 12-inch ventilating pipe can be run, and the inside of the globe can be kept at the top for quick opening and closing for ventilation when at sea.

In the upper part of the globe are fitted manholes, which may be opened or closed from within. Glass lights fitted in the sides also allow those in the globe to get a view of their surroundings.

Donvig, when the ship on which he and his family were journeying was lost, saw an iron pot floating in the water. A boat which attempted to get the passengers to land was smashed on the rocks. It was at that time that he conceived the idea of his novel craft, which will not break up when it is smashed on the rocks, and is a case of invention which probably will be heard of generally in the course of a few years.

Johnson is in a dying condition, and is not expected to survive the night.

THE WHITE COMPANY

By A. CONAN DOYLE.

CHAPTER XXXIV—Continued.

"In that you have vantage," said the crossbowman. "By Saint James! It is now my turn to show you where my weapon has the better of you. I pray you to draw a flight shaft with all your strength down the valley, that we may see the length of your shoot."

"That is a very strong word of yours," said Johnston, shaking his grizzled head as he glanced at the thick arch and powerful strings of his rival's arbalest. "I have little doubt that you can overshoot me, and yet I have seen bowmen who could send a cloth-yard arrow further than you could speed a quarrel."

"So I have heard," remarked the Br
